Bondage Update

Let me congratulate you on issue #190 (Rope Tricks). The photos were well "exposed" and the text well written, with the exception of the information on the D.C. and the Philadelphia Bondage clubs.

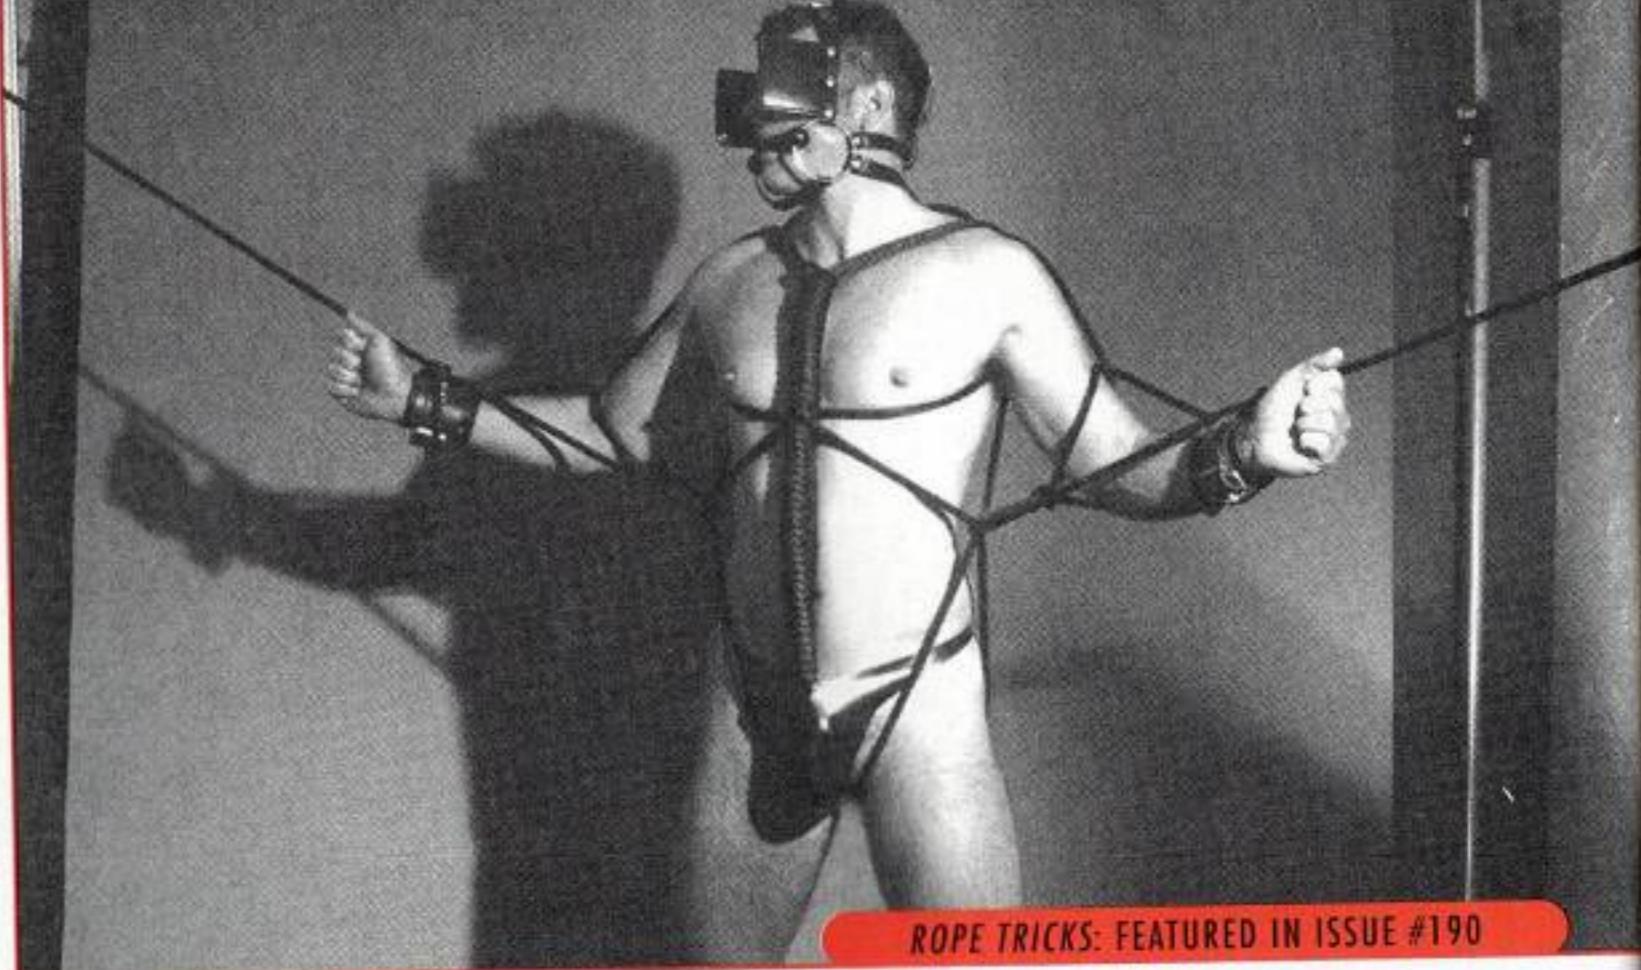

The D.C. Bondage club falls under Sigma (the D.C. area's SM organization for the last eleven years). It meets monthly and is open to all members of the gay and pan-sexual leather community. Sigma also holds a monthly dungeon party for the more advanced players, and is also a member of CAB (Capital Area Board) with participation in the D.C. Eagle club night rotation. Sigma also does demos and program (educational) meetings. The telephone number (202) 728-7589 is for the Sigma hotline and covers all aspects of Sigma.

The Philadelphia Bondage club is a brother club to Sigma. Their new hotline number is (215) 732-1945. They meet the first Wednesday and third Saturday of each month in the heart of Center City, Philadelphia. Ed Moore, Mr. D.C. Drummer 1995 and Chairman of Sigma

Putting On the Gloves

I picked up a copy of Drummer #189 (Altered Sex) and saw a letter from Big Bad Bob from Binghamton (Male Call). He wrote about "gay" men and boxing. A friend of mine owns the rights to the Golden Gloves in upstate New York. I always help with the boxers during the Golden Gloves weekend. I check to make sure that the boxers have groin protectors on, I put on their head gear and their boxing gloves. I spend a lot of time in the locker room. Boxing is a great form of SM. I hope you will try to work the great sport of boxing into a future issue. BP, Syracuse, NY

Ed. You are not alone in your interest in boxing - or your interest in Big Bad Bob. Letters such as Bob's and yours prompted us to run the boxing story in this issue. It was written by a man who is into the SM/sexual components of the sport.

Old Reliable

It was a pleasure to browse through issues #186, #187 and #188. All three issues felt good in the hands. Also, there were several unidentified photos of mine in these magazines which clearly were dug out of the Drummer files and no one knew who shot them. In issue #188 these photos appear on page 17 at the bottom (Michael Lee) and on page 20 at the bottom (Mike Glacier). Thanks so much for your desire to give appropriate credit. I also found a nice mention of myself in the look back by Tony DeBlase in the anniversary issue (#188), which I hadn't seen previously. Thank you. David Hurles. Old Reliable, Hollywood, CA

Ed. Sorry for the oversight. Thanks for your patience and your wonderful images. Readers interested in information about Old Reliable and their catalogs can contact: Old Reliable, 1626 N. Wilcox, #107, Hollywood, CA 90028. Please state you are over 21 years of age.

Ask Dr. Ruthless

I recently started topping this boy in London - the sex is great. He is a built, masculine man with a shaved head and hot boots. The problem is that when we get into it he starts screaming like a sissy - he is into the scene but his emanations are a real turn off for me, any suggestions?

D.R. Dr. Ruthless thinks that almost any problem can be solved with a gag. If you really feel the need to stifle his verbal outbursts this may be a good solution. Just be very clear about issues of consent and limits before the scene begins. Taking away someone's capacity for speech and verbal communication is a very intense thing for some people and can also be a very effective tool.

More Ruthless

I have just recently arrived in Chicago and have been going out to the bars. I am a heavy player and am looking for other people with similar interests. The problem is that a lot of the people who are dressed in leather are not actually into SM play, and those that are players are too drunk or high to have a safe scene by the end of the night. Do you know of any ways to find the people that I want to meet? Playmate Wanted, Chicago

D.R. Dr. Ruthless has encountered this problem many times himself, and you are right - not all people in full leather are into SM and BD. And a bar is not always the best place to pick someone up for a scene. The use of drugs and alcohol can impair judgment and be dangerous. I suggest you get in touch with the SM clubs in Chicago. You will find willing, eager and safe participants within that context. ■

LYONS AND GILROY IN POSTCARDS FROM AMERICA

Something for Everyone

REVIEWS BY CHRIS HOGAN

Postcards From America

Islet presents a Normal Production of a film by Steve McLean. Written and directed by Steve McLean. Adapted from the writings of David Wojnarowicz. Starring James Lyons, Michael Tighe, Olmo Tighe, Michael Imperioli, Michael Ringer, and Maggie Low.

Adapted from the autobiographical writings of David Wojnarowicz, "Postcards From America" offers one of the most intelligent and intriguing explorations of gay male sexuality in "legit" films. The story follows David as he runs from abuse towards danger, including consensual but dangerous sex. However, we don't see a chronological progression from child to adult. Instead, the film moves freely among three stages of David's life, his childhood dominated by his abusive father, his teenage years as a hustler in New York City, and as a grown-up gay man negotiating love and sex in the age of AIDS.

While there are no explicit sex scenes, "Postcards From America" is overflowing with sexual tension and energy. From David's childhood memories of his tanned and beautiful uncle to the truck stop pick-ups of his adult life, we feel the attractions that motivate this character. Writer and director Steve McLean admirably avoids pop psychology and judgments in his portrait of David. Young David's interest in sex with older men is presented as honestly as his fear of it. The adult character who puts himself at great physical and emotional risk for the sake of sex is not presented as pathological.

The three actors who play David (from youngest to oldest, Olmo Tighe, Michael Tighe, and James Lyons) all project the same honest yet enigmatic quality necessary for the role. Michael Imperioli is terrific as a failed, two-bit hood and fellow hustler. The most brilliant casting, however, is Michael Ringer as David's monstrous father. While his character is morally repellent, Ringer is gorgeous and imbues the father with an incredibly attractive, dark sexuality. It is this kind of emotional and sexual tension that makes "Postcards From America" compelling.

Bound & Gagged 3

A Night At The Lure

Written, directed and produced by Peter B., Joe Fitzpatrick, and Bob Wingate. Edited by Jim Young, Peter B., and Joe Fitzpatrick. Starring Lee Denner, Tino Trevino, Chain, Greg Foster, Ryan Wagner, Chuck Taylor, and Bob Phillips. Running time 100 minutes. To order write The Outbound Press, 89 5th Ave, Suite 803, New York, NY 10003.

Bob Wingate and company are getting more ambitious with their videos. "Bound & Gagged 3: A Night at The Lure" includes a plot for the first time. There's also more action than in their earlier ventures. While the increase in sex is great, the story

Most of them don't have the knock-your-socks-off beauty of Duroy's usual models, and they are a bit listless at times. There are some exceptions. Pavol Holik, Kristoff Tripska, Alexander Straus, and Dano Sulik are all thoroughly fabulous. A second-rate Duroy film is still much better than most American-made, mainstream porn—especially if nubile boys turn you on.

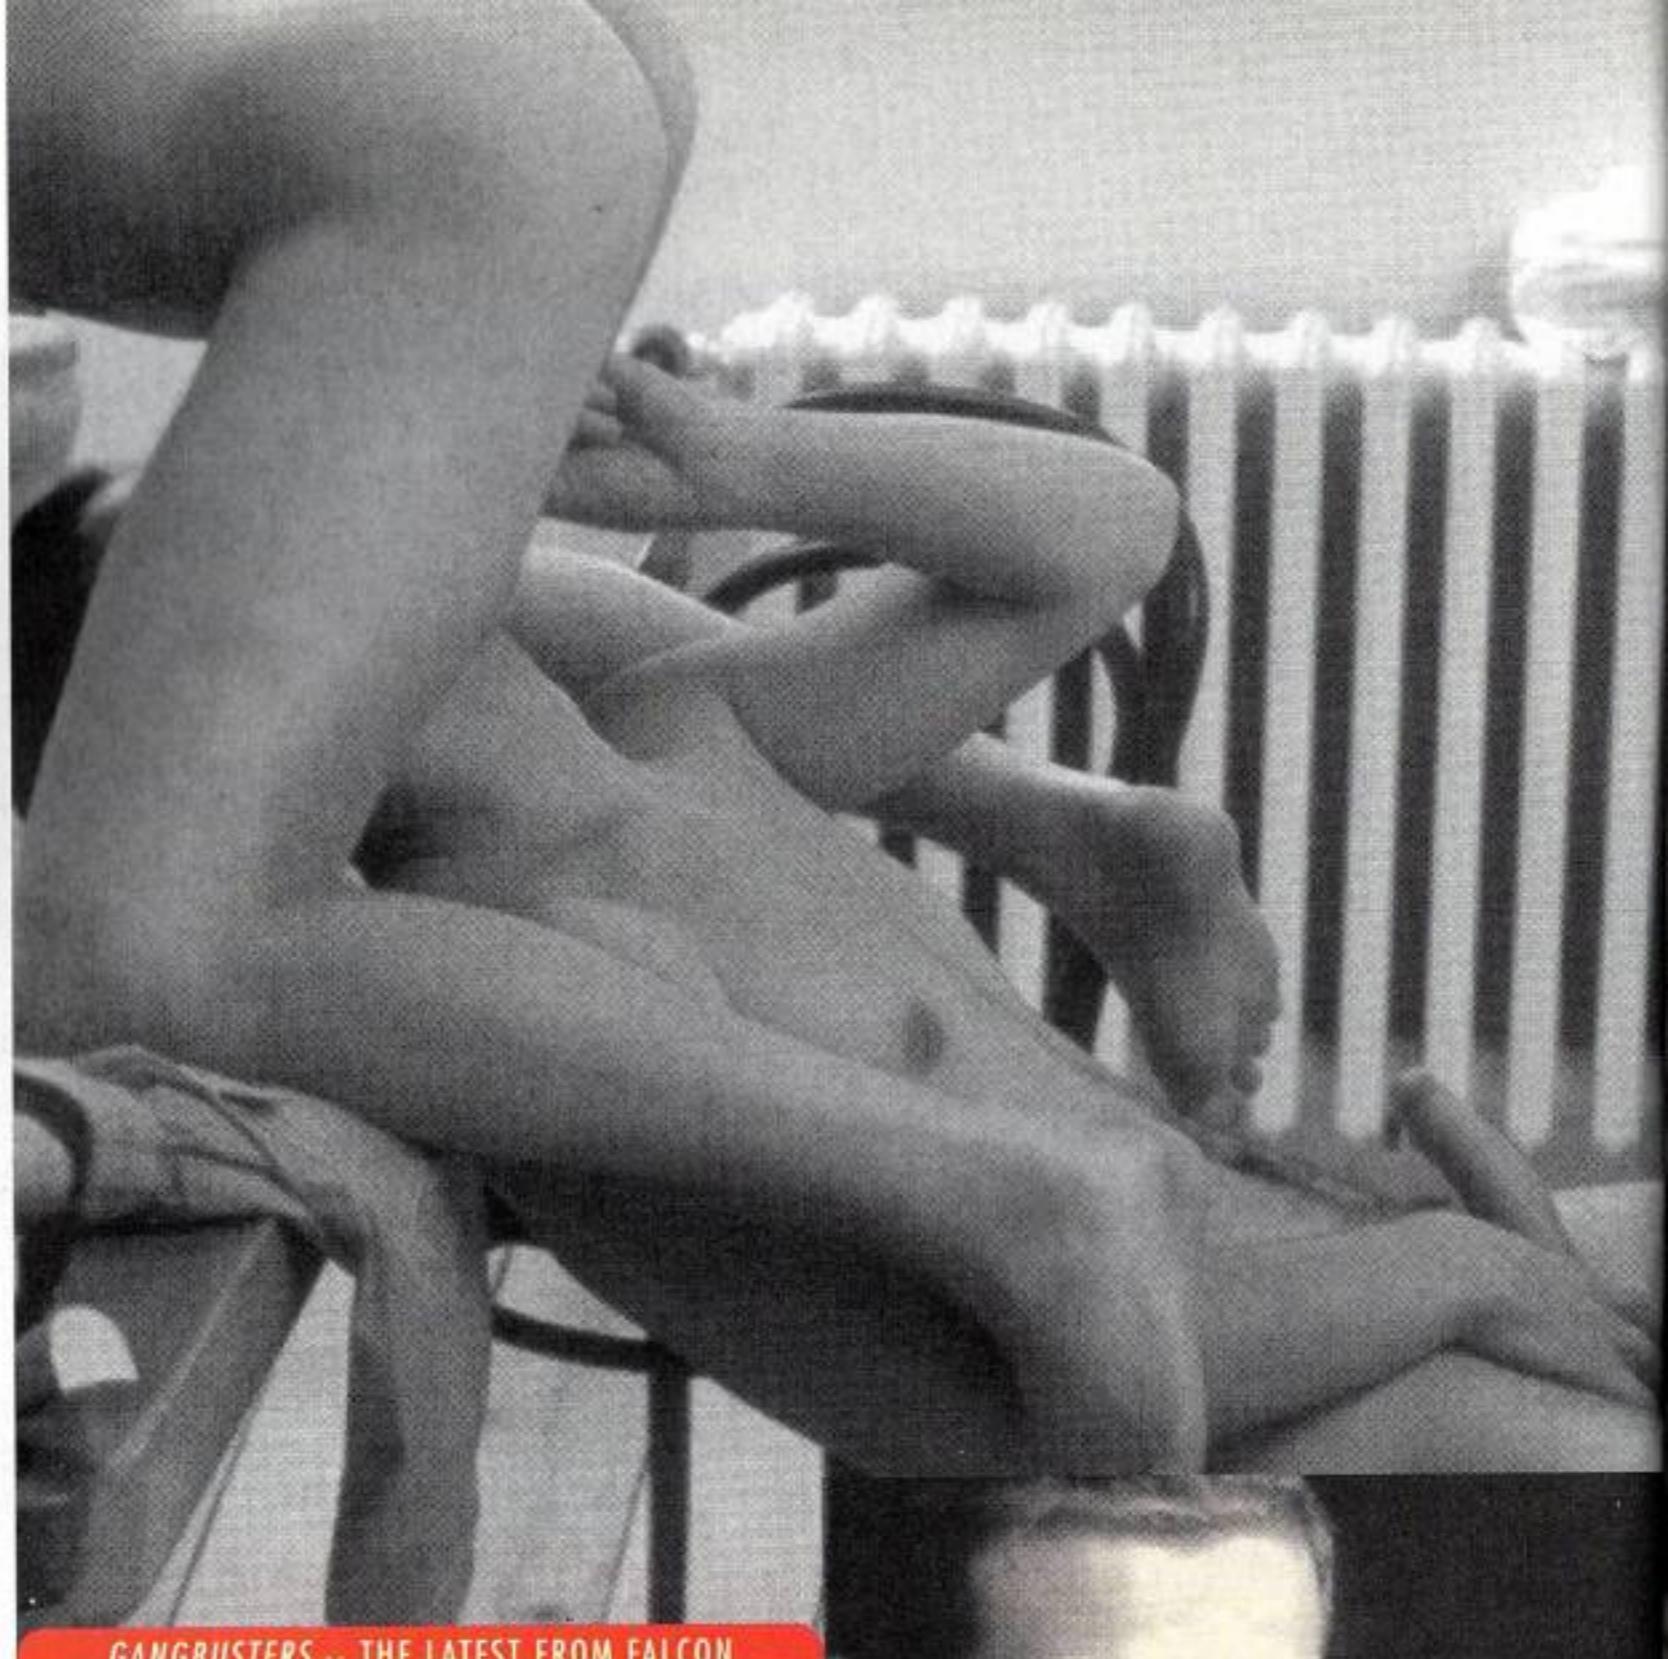

Kickball! & Kickball II

"Kickball!" and "Kickball II" are dedicated to hard-core testicle torture. Roger, a regular in Shotgun productions, is the principle sadist in both videos. Also featured is Pete Tanakis whose immense balls can withstand incredible torment.

"Kickball!" is almost entirely a one-on-one session between Roger and Tanakis. While Tanakis' face is hidden by a leather mask, we do get a good look at his terrific body as Roger repeatedly pounds on his balls with his fists and various mallets. Roger also delivers several swift, hard kicks. Tanakis barely flinches during most of this. When he does break, he comes back quickly and asks for more. Tanakis is so turned on that the top and bottom roles are almost reversed. He doesn't beg for his torture; he demands it. While the action is somewhat disjointed and we see several shots repeated, this scene delivers top-notch SM fantasy.

A "Bonus Torture Afternoon" comes next. Roger is again the master. This time he's training two big, brawny hunks to take serious ball torture. The electronic masking of the recruits' identities is distracting, but we still see an intense scene. One of the bottoms breaks fairly early, after ten powerful blows to his groin. The other endures more fierce punishment. Eventually, both Roger and the other trainee are slamming his balls with their fists and paddles. The new top gets so excited he shoots a considerable load.

"Kickball II" is even better than its

prequel. This time Dave North, Andrew Montano, Cougar Cash (one of my all-time favorites), and others join Roger and Tanakis for vicious testicle play. In the first scene, it's Cash's turn to deliver painful kicks to the bound Tanakis.

He smashes his steel-toed boot right into Tanakis's sack. Next, we see that Cash can take it as well as he dishes it out. He jacks off with his balls tied up and pulled high above him and with clothes pins on his nipples for good measure.

The video continues to deliver extreme testicle torture. For example, clever Roger has modified a hand-held saber saw by removing the blade and replacing it with a flat pad. When he sticks this between his victim's legs it delivers high-speed, sharp jabs that cause screams and spasms of pain.

The "Bonus Afternoon Torture" in "Kickball II" ends with high-voltage shock to a pair of massive bullocks that cause both top and bottom to shoot their loads. ■

Cruising Safely

BY NORMAN GREENSTEIN, M.D.

NO MATTER WHAT TYPE OF MAN IS THE OBJECT OF YOUR DESIRE, CRUISING MEANS VENTURING INTO A DANGEROUS BUT EXCITING PENILE JUNGLE.

You're alone, you're horny, you want some action. Maybe you're a single guy or your lover's out of town. Maybe you feel the need to be disciplined severely and your regular boyfriend is a bottom who doesn't switch. Maybe your master would like some help with a scene and has sent you out to attract and bring home another topman. Whatever the reason, you are in cruise mode.

Cruising can be exhilarating, terrifying, or both. It doesn't matter where you cruise--a leather bar, the beachfront shrubs at Fire Island Pines, a highway rest area, a JO party at your cousin's house, or the waiting room at the local clinic.

This isn't a column about safe techniques, at least not the kind about which I usually write. Even if you know everything there is to know about physically safe sex, information is worthless if it isn't used. Safe cruising is about deciding with your eyes open, up front, what risks are acceptable in order to feel satisfied sexually, and then sticking to the limits you've set for yourself. It's also about being honest about why a particular level of risk is okay. Emotional honesty makes it easier to set limits for sexual risk that don't get washed away with the first drop of precum.

Safety Tips

So you're at a leather bar down the street from the local gym. There's a handsome specimen near the barbecue grill in the back room. Before approaching this object of lust, check out Dr. Greenstein's list of safety tips:

1. Don't pick up somebody when either of you is too drunk or high to have good judgment. If a guy is really attractive but there is doubt as to whether he's sober enough to consent to what you want to do, he'll still be just as cute when he's sober. Don't get him on his knees, get his phone number.

2. Remember that being in bottom space and maintaining limits you've set for yourself are compatible. Don't allow a top to pressure you into something you don't feel safe doing, especially an unknown top you are cruising. This goes for submission, masochism, and vanilla sex. The most obvious example is a top who gets his bottom aroused and then says, if you're a really good slave, you'll let me fuck you.

soldiers, etc. But the jock fetish is a scene whose time has come.

There are many of us who find that the ultimate turn-on is to put on a full football or hockey uniform and I mean FULL with jock, pads, pants, and helmet, topped off with the jersey, and get into some totally wild action. For many of us, jock uniforms are the ultimate expression of masculinity. The image of the football player, made into a massive hulking giant in his pads, going out on the field, tearing other men apart for the glory of the team, and the power of the jockstrap is very powerful. Another part of that symbolism is the heady atmosphere of the locker room, where the jockstrap and other pieces of equipment are put on in a ritual atmosphere of male bonding. The players don the armour of battle and render themselves invincible with their gear, epitomized by the jock cup.

I first got into jock sex when I was in high school playing hockey and soccer. Even at 13, I remember wearing my first jock with the cup in it, getting that feeling of invincibility and knowing that all those pro hockey players I worshipped were also packing their cocks and balls into sweaty jocks when they hit the ice. The atmosphere of the locker room with all the other guys on the team putting on their gear, slapping each others asses and joking about their jockstraps was a total turn on. Before long I was stealing jocks from guys on my team, just to see what would happen the next time we played. One time this hockey-playing hunk threw a tantrum because he couldn't find his jock in his equipment bag. He would have to borrow one or not be allowed to set foot on the ice!!

When I was alone in the house I would put on my jock, shoulder pads, helmet and hockey socks with garters holding them up and beat off in front of a mirror waving around my hockey stick. I would shoot my load into the mirror yelling "He shoots, he scores."

Ever since, sex with a man has been inextricably linked with jock gear. One time I got into jerking off with a guy in college who played football. Before I knew it he was in his football gear, I was in my hockey gear and we were stomping around waving our dicks talking about which was the ultimate jock sport - football or hockey. I got him to fuck me in his full gear. I clutched a football while getting fucked and I heard him scream "Touchdown!!" when he blew his load. This was clearly going to be it for me.

Over the years, many of us into the jock scene have found ourselves as a distinct sub-set of the leather fetish community. In some ways the Jock scene is the flip side of the coin to the Leather scene. Leather represents that which is dark, sinister, underground, decadent, dangerous, occult. Jock sex represents that which is light, innocent, pure, ubiquitous in that it is all around us (i.e., Sunday afternoon football) and yet so easily corrupted. It is a matter of appropriating the symbols of the macho sub-culture, and turning them on their heads!

Many supposedly straight guys I have played with get into the male bonding of the locker room when they play football with the boys and part of them wants that male bonding to take that final step. Once upon a time, I ran an ad in a local newspaper and arranged to meet a guy by a pay phone. Low and behold, he was a 6'3", 220 lb. 22 year old college football player with a blond brush cut wearing scrimage shorts holding a football helmet under one arm and shoulder pads under the other! The guy had a girl friend, but needed to get into a scene with another hunky guy and get fucked with the jockstrap stuffed in his mouth as the ultimate expression of male bonding.

Another time I hooked up with a preppy, blond 19 year old who brought along a hockey uniform and a poster of his favorite hockey player - Eric Lindros of the Philadelphia Flyers. Our scene culminated with him on his knees on the poster of his beloved Eric Lindros wearing his jock and pads while I took slaps and swatted him on the butt with my hockey stick. He screamed Lindros name over and over while shooting his come all over the poster!

More recently, I am exploring the jock scene as an element of the SM scene. Instead of leather domination we do jock domination. Whoever wears the gear is the Jock King and gets worshipped. Sometimes we wear the uniform and number of a particular player and get into some role playing. I have put on a Dallas Cowboys uniform and gotten into being Troy Aikman the jock God and flooded guys with my piss strained through my jockstrap while they cry out my name. A fistin scene can also be enhanced when the top wears the gear and is jock fisting the bottom. The bottom can any of those activities is open to all. Most teams need support staff of aomw sort and once your foot's in the door the rest is as easy as snapping the strap on a jock.

There are also a growing number of straight sports bars which sponsor amateur teams. If a heterosexual cock excites you, scout out the sports bars and the teams they sponsor, but be careful not to make a move unless you're sure you won't wind up in the hospital.

If your fantasies involve those hunky demi-gods you see on college playing fields or on TV, don't despair. Granted, unless you are willing to become a professional sports groupie and spend your life hanging around arenas and stadiums on the off chance that you might attract a professional jock's attention, you're not likely to have much success at the jocksex game. For the most part, professional athletes are either openly homophobic or so deeply closeted that it doesn't make much difference.

But within the amateur ranks, you may have a fighting chance. Since you don't want to mess around with the under 18 high school crowd (far too dangerous legally) confine your cruising to college athletes. You never know when you may get lucky. And chances are, college students, even jock types, are more likely to be tolerant of a gay man making a pass. If you're really lucky, the jock of your dreams may be gay, bi or curious.

If you can make yourself somewhat inconspicuous (definitely no heavy leather), college student unions, sports rallies, student hangouts, etc. may be your best bet for getting next to the jock you lust for. If you're a college alumnus and still live near the old alma mater, you may be in an even better position. And if you are a former college jock yourself, entry to all sorts of places is easier, even locker rooms after the games! Think of a room full of naked athletes, wet from the showers, horsing around after a game and try to control yourself. Once inside, careful observation may reveal a young jock who appears to be a little more introverted than his teammates. Make a friend, feel him out before you try to feel him up and if the door is slightly ajar, go for it.

The most productive cruising ground for finding well-built young jocks, of course, is your nearby gym. Body building has taken off in the gay community and in most larger cities you will find gyms with a large gay membership. If getting down on your knees in front of a hot jock is your primary goal (or getting him on his knees), the gym is the place to be. Steam rooms, saunas and shower rooms still tell you all you want to know about a dude's body and equipment.

If you're not obnoxious about it, the gym is the happy hunting ground for jocks. And you will be doing yourself a favor at the same time. Just as it takes one to know one, the same is also true that if you are one, you'll find one. Get yourself in good shape and attracting other jocks will be that much easier.

Then you can live out your fantasy of being joined together, mouth to dick or dick to asshole, with that fantasy figure you've spent so many nights, while you lay in bed at night, stroking your dick to your fevered image of your perfect man big, muscular, hung and all yours. Instead of a dream he'll be right there, his hard cock quivering for your touch, his supple, muscular body waiting for you, eager to return your caresses, ready to fill your wet openings with his turgid jock dick and transport you to jock-sex heaven.

Where to Sniff

The best way to get next to the jock of your dreams is to be on the spot, whether it's near the playing field, locker room or jock hangout. Every major American city has a variety of organized sports leagues, whether they be baseball, bowling, football, swimming, track and field, cycling, hiking or pool.

Find out where these activities are taking place by contacting your local gay services center, if your city has one, or consult your local gay newspaper. Some larger cities even have sports federations to contact for information about local activities and Gay Olympics information.

If you are looking for collegiate jocks, explore college campuses, arenas and sports centers. It's always easier to approach a dude in a social situation than outside a locker room.

Professional sports figures are always the hardest to reach because of the security that surrounds them in their workplaces. Short of following when they leave the arena or field, it is sometimes possible to find out a favorite team hangout (baseball players are the most notorious for being drinkers) where a social contact may be made. Even then, scoring can be problematical and requires the utmost tact and patience.

The major sports scene is still a hotbed of homophobia. You can count on one hand the number of professional athletes who have come out publicly. ■ affect any alternative newspaper. They're after anyone who doesn't suit the fancy of basically the right wing," she stated in an interview with International Drummer.

Francisco Lobaco, legislative director of the California chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, agrees with Sunlove. "The ban was not obscenity, but what the statute refers to as 'harmful,' which is defined as inappropriate to minors," he explained. While the primary target of the law is so-called adult newspapers, it could easily be interpreted to cover anything sexually explicit. "What else it would cover would be anything at all that has sexual content," Lobaco noted.

The effect of the law, said Lobaco, would be to chill free expression by forcing any publication distributed on the street to censor content to a level "acceptable to four-year-olds" since no publisher can afford to police every distribution point one hour a day, let alone 24.

Sunlove pointed out that the very prospect of arrest would be sufficient to chill expression. "Maybe we would win in court if we were arrested, but how often could we afford to defend ourselves? If we were brought to court in 12 different municipalities, there's no way we could pay for our defense," she said, adding that she had already begun to tone down the content of Spectator in anticipation of the law's enforcement.

The outcome will not be decided until May at the earliest and possibly not until 1997. Even then, either Sunlove and her colleagues or state Attorney General Dan Lungren, a pronounced conservative, could appeal the decision to the Supreme Court.

Bolton-Jones Sever Business Ties SAN FRANCISCO

Bolton-Jones Productions is no more. The SM/fetish film-making company has reverted to Bob Jones Productions with the breakup of the business relationship between producer Bob Jones and director/performer Rick Bolton. The split, which also appeared to mark an end to the two men's long-time friendship, has led to threats of lawsuit, though no suit had been filed as of mid-December. According to Jones' lawyer Dennis Saxman, both parties have expressed a desire to settle things amicably. "But as in any legal dispute," he added, "the differences in opinion are quite pronounced."

Bob Jones Productions became Bolton-Jones Productions when Jones moved his business to San Francisco from the East Coast early in 1994. Bolton, who had performed in numerous Bob Jones films, moved to California with his wife to help get the business established in its new location. With Bolton's help, Jones also opened a retail store and video gallery in front of the Folsom Street studio. According to Jones, the company produced an average of three videos a month in its new location, including "Torture Alley," "Master Sex Toys," "Motorshop Enema Slaves" and "Caught in the Act" 1, 2 and 3.

While Jones and Bolton, whose real name is Barney Bolt III, offer conflicting accounts of the reasons for the breakup, not in dispute is the fact that Jones dismissed Bolton shortly after the Folsom Street Fair in September. Jones said Bolton, who he described as the company secretary and Saxman termed the chief financial officer, had become a "liability," refusing to elaborate further. He claims Bolton was a contract employee subject to dismissal at will.

Bolton claims he was not an employee but a partner who had been promised a 50-percent interest in the business. He said he operated the business largely on his own during a period when Jones was unable to work. "After I moved here, Bob's health deteriorated from putting in so many hours at work and all the stress. While Bob was recovering, I basically ran the show. I trained with him back at the gym so he could get back in shape. As he got better, it was evident he didn't need me anymore," he said.

Whatever the outcome of the dispute, both men are moving ahead with

A BRIGHT WARNING

A patent for a condom that turns bright colors when it tears has recently been approved by the U.S. patent office. According to available information on the new product, if air hits the middle lining of the condom which has been sprayed with air-sensitive dye, the condom will turn green or purple. The product is not yet available for sale.

them violated both the state and federal constitutions.

Palange was assisted in his case by Marjorie Heins, national director of the arts censorship project of the American Civil Liberties Union. Heins told AP she had flown out from New York City because of the case in regard to community access channels on cable TV. The channel's mandate, she said, is to allow programming unrestricted by political pressure to censor the "unpopular, provocative or shocking."

Police Warn Gay Cruisers

P O R T L A N D

Local police have taken a rather original approach to deter gay men's late-night cruising of this city's Western Promenade. Undercover officers have been copying license plate numbers, then sending letters to the car owners requesting they stop driving around the area. A similar approach worked two years ago to curb late-night activity, which neighbors complained was disturbing their sleep, but gradually cruisers began to reappear. Police Chief Michael Chitwood told an Associated Press reporter his officers would begin videotaping cars if the method is less successful a second time.

Although many people, including some in the gay community, regarded the letters as a humane alternative to typical police methods of dealing with cruising, Sally Sutton, a spokeswoman for the Maine Civil Liberties Union charged the police action is nonetheless a breach of citizen rights. "Innocent people should not be badgered this way. If a criminal act is observed, make an arrest. If not, leave people alone," she said.

Baby Barred from Mapplethorpe Show

On the theory that you're never too young to be protected from potentially pornographic imagery, the Wellington City Art Gallery in New Zealand refused a nine-day-old baby entry to an exhibition of photos by gay artist Robert Mapplethorpe. Museum director Paula Savage told an Associated Press reporter she felt she had to abide by an adults-only policy for fear the New Zealand Censor's Office would fine both the gallery and the child's mother. "We have to be seen to be obeying the law," she said.

Arm of Law Gets Longer

F R E M O N T

The Internet has made the world smaller not only for users but also for police. According to reports in the San Francisco Chronicle, an investigation begun in England in 1994 resulted in the late 1995 arrest and arraignment of a man in Fremont, California for receiving and distributing child pornography. Police in the West Midlands region learned of American citizen Kevin William Curry's alleged activities while monitoring two Internet user groups with the word "pedophile" in their titles.

Subsequently, they passed the information to U.S. authorities, who continued the investigation. U.S. Customs agents raided Curry's home and seized, in the words of U.S. Attorney Tony West, "thousands of computer images depicting children engaged in sex acts." They also seized 14 sexually explicit videos and "hundreds" of photographs.

Curry reportedly admitted he traded images using an encryption program called Pretty Good Privacy, or PGP. The FBI is currently examining the use of encryption programs and has indicated it wants the right to examine any transmissions employing such programs. Authorities in several other countries, including the U.K., also are seeking to extend their access to encrypted transmissions. ■

Leather Show Censors Get A Light Hand Slap

D E N V E R

A jury's damage award of only $1 has angered a producer of gay videos whose work was illegally censored by a local cable operator. Producer Tony Palange told the Associated Press he was not surprised by the meager amount. "That's just about what a gay person's rights are worth in this city," he said.

The case involved the refusal of Denver community access channel DCTV to broadcast the "Crucified in Leather" and "Buddies Beer Bust" episodes of a program Palange has been producing since 1990. DCTV deemed them obscene. Denver District Judge Richard Spriggs ruled that the two shows were not obscene and that the station's refusal to air hard that, a couple of times, I nearly stumbled over rocks or roots. He was not real. He was just a photograph, just a flickering phantom in a film. When the reel ran out, he would disappear.

We ran softly for about three miles. We wended among the great silver beeches hazed with pink buds. Early violets and wood anemones poked up through the carpet of dead leaves. In the marshy spots, the skunk cabbages' bloom was long past and they were thrusting up their coarse green leaves. We leaped over logs fallen across the trail. We splashed over streams, where the witch hazel still bent its frail yellow sprays of bloom. We leaped up hills and floated down on the other side.

Only once did Billy turn to speak to me. "Seven minutes," he said over his shoulder, grinning a little. "You have to be some kind of masochist."

Then we came to a spot where a faint side trail forked off.

"Billy," I said. He looked back. My stomach plunged with nervousness. "This way," I said.

He fell in behind me this time. We followed the barely visible trail over a ridge and down along a slope through some stately, old, half-dead hemlocks, then up another slope and down along it into a little valley. The slope here was grown up with mountain laurel, shoulder high. At the bottom of the valley, a little stream noised along among the rocks. It slid in a shining sheet over a mossy rock shelf into a little pool, then wound on. I had slowed us down—we were barely much more than jogging now. I wanted to warm us down as much as possible, and the trail was so rough here I didn't want Billy to trip and hurt himself.

I stopped in a little clearing in the mountain laurel, and looked around. I knew this place already. It faced south, the sun would hit it in a few minutes, and we'd be warm here. It was secluded—the teams never took that side trail during their woods workouts.

touched everything we could reach, tasted the salt of each other's skin. His sweat was sweeter than mine because of the no-salt diet.

I buried my face in his damp hair and untied the sleeves of the red shirt from his waist, and it slipped to the leaves. Billy took off his glasses and let them lie on the sweatshirt. His hands were already sliding feverishly under the waistband of my shorts. There was no sound but the silence of the woods and the birds caroling senselessly, and the leaves, crackling under our spikes.

I went to my knees, sliding down against him and kissing his body all the way down. My hands shucked down his shorts and jock strap both at once. The harsh brown patch of pubic hair was startling on his pale, supple, veined loins, and the swollen cock between those runner's thighs. I had it in my mouth almost before I'd seen it. The only sound, in that silence, was Billy groaning softly as he fondled my head and thrust his hips slowly against my face. He was real.

Despite my wish to be frank, I can't describe everything we did.

There are several reasons why. I am better at hiding feeling than displaying them. I am not literary enough. I have to keep some memories for myself. I am not sure that I remember what we did in exact serial order. Besides, I think it is generally known by now what happens when two human bodies come together.

Maybe if I were the Jean Genet or the Steve Goodnight of the trackwriters, I could put on paper the peculiar intensity of that first sexual encounter.

The work "ecstasy" isn't quite right. We both rejected mysticism in favor of simple directness and rough tenderness. If Billy let himself go so far as to moan sometimes and close his eyes and toss his head around on the leaves, I was silent and open-eyed. I had to see in order to believe. Even in his arms, I was the doubting Thomas.

The lesbians tell us that only a woman knows how to love a woman. The gays will answer that only a man knows how to love a man. I had always found women passive, devouring. They seemed to have no notion of how important sex is to a man, and no willingness to learn. Women had always robbed me of my sex for money—my first wife, then the prostitutes. But Billy's male intensity met me halfway. Instead of taking, he gave. Each of us gave, and gave again, until we were drained and hurting.

That first time, we shied away from the ultimate act of love and possession that the Supreme Court had declared legal. In our macho pride, neither of us had ever permitted another man to do that. For months yet, each of us would still have a deep-rooted fear of offending precisely that maleness that we loved in the other. In addition, I dreaded the idea of hurting Billy physically, or of upsetting that relentless psych that kept him in front on the track.

It would take far more trust and confidence than we had on that April morning before each of us would not only tolerate being taken, but actually wish for it as the ultimate way of pleasing the other. In fact, I would be the first to surrender—my fear of damaging Billy was so strong that I would wind up hurting his feelings by at first refusing his own surrender.

But for now, what we were able to give and receive was more than enough.

We lay finished.

I had expected to feel shattered after this intimacy with my ghost. Instead I felt peaceful. It was warm there on the dry leaves. The warming sun was shining right on us, and I felt empty, almost weightless. I felt very clean, as if the light were shining straight through me—as if the forest air were moving through all the cells of my body.

His legs lay across my arm, and my head lay on his thighs. He still had his arms around my lower body, and his face pressed against my groin. In the silence, I could almost hear our hearts beat. They had the slow deep pulse of the distance runner—mine was about forty-eight and his was forty. I could see that pulse beating in his genitals—the penis, still swollen and moist, moved slowly as it lay across his thigh. My mouth tasted of his salt and his semen.

The leaves crackled a little under us. Nearby, the water gurgled as it slid over the rock. The birds had stopped their dawn caroling and were into the softer, more businesslike daytime notes. In the distance was the soft rumble of a jet plane.

I couldn't move. In my sweet inertia, I was like a rock. I would lay there till a glacier moved me.

Billy drew a long slow breath and ran his hand along my thigh one more time. My arm was going to sleep, so with deep regrets I pulled it slowly from under his thighs. It took an effort, but I raised myself up on my elbow. He stayed as he was, his face between my thighs, his hand stroking. My groin was spattered with a little glistening semen, and Billy started to lick it up slowly, first out of the pubic hair, then off my bare skin to the side. His eyes were closed.

It was dreamlike yet so real—the feel of his wet tongue on my body. He moved slowly, turning against me, kissing his way up along my torso. He was dry now, and warm, with a fine dust of salt on his skin. His tongue left a wet trail in my body hair. He reached my breast, kissed my nipples, nuzzled his face in my thick chest hair. Something in this mute act of worship made me think that no other lovemaking had ever stirred him so deeply. ■

JAIL CELL BREAKOUT

V144

Nasty jailer Steve Dragyn puts 4 buffed horny studs in detention cells. It soon becomes hot actions of lustful and kinky men getting into sucking, beating their meats, shaving, rimming and fast hard fucks.

Sex Boxing & Body Punching

It's usually noisy in here. The rhythmic pounding never stops. Within the grimy walls of this dingy cavern of an old warehouse is the city's oldest boxing gym. Late sun breaks through windows fogged by the moist air heavy with the stink of men, sweat and worn leather.

But now only one fighter remains. He works with stern concentration boring in on a heavy bag with lefts and rights like he's putting away a losing opponent in a late round.

Brad's a solid middleweight. He made it to the Golden Gloves quarterfinals as a teen, and later boxed in Marine Corps rec centers. Well muscled, tightly built, Brad's a fighter, not a weight lifter. His shoulders and pecs are compact with dense muscle from work on the heavy bag. His broad back and hairy chest taper to a waist formed into a lean fighter's midsection. His jaw is square and you can make out faint scars above his eyebrows. At thirty-four years old Brad has found his stride and confidence in himself. A thoroughly physical man, Brad is his body. Smooth and skillful, he works the bag like a well-oiled machine.

Gay guys have hung around boxers and boxing, in and out of the ring, forever. When his dad took him to a gym as a boy, Brad knew right away — a warm, good feeling came over him as he watched the older boys and young men punch the bag, skip rope, and box each other in the worn shabby ring. Only later did Brad realize that the warm glow meant he was gay.

Brad's tanned sweat-streaked torso glistens in the harsh light of the gym's bare light bulbs. He's winding up today's workout alternating rounds of shadow boxing and rope skipping. His faded blue shorts stick to his muscled ass. The hand wraps around his fists are dirty-white from punching the speed bag. He wipes sweat from his forehead during the one-minute rest, then re-adjusts his cock and balls behind their protective jock. Back to work — one more round to go, he thinks.

Brad's horny. Sights and smells of men and boxing make Brad horny, and being horny makes Brad train harder. Brad does SM sex. Doesn't like that "Sir" and "boy" stuff. Doesn't need it. Brad's favorite sport is boxing, and his favorite scene with other hot men is body punching. When Brad tops a guy he boxes him where it hurts most, in the stomach. He thinks of his man as his "fan." He dominates his man with coaching and encouragement. Instead of "boy," Brad likes to call his man "Big Guy," or "Man," or "Champ."

With the gym empty, this boxer's got plans. No need to waste an

Well, for starters I'm going to give your pussy-boy ass a walloping it won't soon forget. But more importantly, you're never gonna receive the newest and largest RoB catalog ever. The catalog that's bursting with the best selection of leather and rubber gear that any true slave would get an instant hard-on over. So you see, boy, if you don't fill this out, you're just never gonna get to suck on that new gag your Master was going to order to fill that pretty little scum-sucking mouth of yours. You'll also never get a chance to order those new leather chaps that you were going to get for your Master, and that means you'll never be able to clean them with your tongue like a good little roveling slave boy should. So, boy, why the fuck aren't you writing? I told you to fill this out NOW, boy! I mean it, you little shit. You've got only 30 more seconds. Do it

Dangerous Tongues

We must be vigilant about all forms of censorship.

BY PAT CALIFIA

It isn't fashionable to talk about censorship. People don't like it. It makes them uncomfortable to be reminded that governments have this power and frequently exercise it. It's frightening to think about books being burned, presses and bookstores being trashed or put out of business, and editors, publishers and authors being sent to jail or fined. What the state can do to a piece of paper, it can do to the human body. By limiting what we can read about, the state limits our agenda for social change. When any medium of expression is hampered by police powers, we lose some of our latitude to criticize the institutions that govern our lives. We lose some of our already-puny ability to make these institutions accountable. So we have to be vigilant about censorship, find out when it's happening (no easy task), and oppose it with every ounce of our strength.

That includes the kind of censorship that is practiced by institutions less powerful than the federal government or even a local police chief. I am talking about a bookstore that refuses to carry On Our Backs, Hothead Paisan, Macho Sluts, or the NAMBLA Journal; a magazine that refuses to print certain articles, images, or advertising; a gallery that removes troublesome pictures of sex, nudity or violence; a performance space that will not host Holly Hughes, Karen Finley, Keith Hennessey, or Ron Athey; even down to the most petty level of the personal disclosures you will not allow your friends to make or the confession that would make you leave your lover if she ever dared to whisper them in your ear. The intolerance of vice squads, customs agents, and judges has to come from somewhere. It comes from within us, from our intolerant and timid hearts. The source of censorship is our lack of compassion, our fear of difference, our reluctance to see the cracks in our image of The Truth.

We must address our complicity with the censors because they select their targets with an acute sense of our shame, cowardice, ignorance, and discomfort. When the state tries to control what we can read, hear, or see, it does not (at least in the beginning) attack Broadway plays, the daily newspaper that people read on their way to work, best-selling novels, or prime-time television. To be at-risk for censorship, a work must meet two criteria: it must say unpalatable things; and it must seem indefensible (either because of the extreme content, or because its maker or distributor lacks the material resources to protest state infringement). Like all bullies, censors are rather cowardly themselves. So they go after things that can't be described on the evening news or reproduced in a newsstand magazine; things that might amuse, shock, or arouse us, but are for that very reason difficult to justify; things that seem expendable and trivial.

People with transgressive sexualities are always hiding, always on the run, even if only in a psychological or emotional sense, because pleasurable sex has always been a reliable target for moral reformers and politicians seeking re-election. I'm not talking about the sublimated kind of sex that is used to sell cars and bottled cappuccino, faux-sex that tries to get you to substitute maxing out your credit card for screwing somebody through the mattress. I'm talking about the kind of material that provokes hard-ons, wet-ons, and ejaculations of both genders: gray market and black market media that say things about the body that a lot of people don't want to hear (even if they secretly agree with it). Pornography is as unpopular with most governments as seditious rhetoric because it has a similar function. Pornography is the grand brawling voice of sexual frustration and panic. It is the only media we have that reliably attacks sex and gender and says, what I have isn't good enough, I don't believe I am the person they say I am, this isn't working, I need something different, I need somebody different, I need more! Pornography is to our injured twentieth-century libidos what medieval churches were to thieves on the run: sanctuary, an unconditional refuge from normalcy and inadequacy, a respite from responsibility, failed relationships, imperfect physiques, and baffled genitalia. Despite its tendency to become commercialized, like everything from food to medicine to air in capitalistic society, visiting the realm of pornography is a good deal more healthy and a damn sight cheaper than the compulsory annual pilgrimages some people make to Disney World.

"Dangerous Tongues" is an excerpt from the recently released "Forbidden Passages, Writings Banned in Canada," published by Cleis Press. "Forbidden Passages," is a fund-raiser for The Little Sisters Bookstore in Canada which has sued the Canadian government over its customs regulations and book banning policies. To order the book: Cleis Press, P.O. Box 8933, Pittsburgh, PA-15221 or call 1-800-780-2279. Price: U.S.: $14.95, Canada: $20.95.
